DETAILED ACTION

1. This communication is in response to the amendment filed on August 22, 2003.

Allowable Subject Matter

2. Claims 1-43 are allowed.
3. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The closest prior art Brody et al (US Patent 5,350,906) teaches the steps of acquiring a plurality of charge accounts, from an account issuer, of a type normally issued with an associated physically producible card which may be presented as evidence of an existing charge account, the physically producible cards bearing human readable account numbers and expiration dates, the plurality of charge accounts being capable of being gifted to a party, after acquisition; receiving a request from a first party to gift a charge account to a second party having a name, with both the issuance and provision of a physical card for the charge account to the second party, the charge account being usable in the name of the second party at any merchant, unrelated to the transfer instrument issuer, who is capable of seeking authorization, using an authorization infrastructure, for purchases involving charge accounts for which the physically producible cards are issued; accepting an account parameter selected by the first party, informing the second party of the account by sending fax or telephone message to the second party, directing the second party to perform a specified action in order to cause an activation of the account with the transfer instrument issuer; activating the account for usage by the second party according to the account parameter; receiving an indication that the second party has made a purchase from a merchant, unrelated to the transfer instrument issuer entity, using the account; and undertaking a settling transaction involving the account with the issuing bank after the usage of the account by the second party without involvement of the first party.

Even though, the prior art teaches methods for performing the above-mentioned steps, the prior art of record fails to teach the steps of no provision of a physical card for the charge account to the second party and the first party and the second party being different from each other. For these reasons claims 1, 5, 30, 31 and 40 are deemed to be allowable over the cited prior art, and claims 2-4, 6-21 and 41-43 are allowable by dependency.

Similarly even though, the prior art teaches methods for performing the above-mentioned steps, the prior art of record fails to teach the step of no provision of a physical card for the charge account to the second party. For this reason claims 22, 32, 33, 35, and 37-39 are deemed to be allowable over the cited prior art, and claims 23-29, 34 and 36 are allowable by dependency.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

Conclusion

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
